Overview

Construction Training Fund

The Construction Training Fund (CTF) is a statutory authority for Western Australia's (WA) construction workforce. We help ensure WA's building and construction industry can meet the demand for skilled workers and create a safe, sustainable future for all who work in the industry.

CTF administers and collects the Building and Construction Industry Training Fund Levy, a 0.2% levy on building projects valued at over $100,000. The levy revenue is invested into a range of CTF programs and initiatives supporting the recruitment, training and upskilling of construction workers, so we can continue to build the workforce that builds WA's homes, businesses and essential infrastructure.

CTF works with organisations of all sizes, as well as industry peak bodies, state and local government, schools, teachers, students, parents and individuals in the community to encourage a fulfilling and rewarding career in the building industry. Additionally, we strive to encourage working environments that promote mental health and inclusivity, creating a diverse, resilient and supportive construction workforce.

Construction Industry Apprentice Council

The Construction Industry Apprentice Council (CIAC) is a CTF-led voluntary advisory group formulated to provide apprentices within the WA building and construction industry with a direct voice in shaping their training and workplace experiences.

CIAC members will meet four times annually (a Teams link will be provided for regional-based apprentices and those unable to join in person). Participation is voluntary and members are not required to attend every session.

The CIAC is open to all WA-based apprentices within the construction industry.

Key messages

General

The Construction Industry Apprentice Council (CIAC) provides WA construction apprentices with a dedicated platform to share their experiences, contribute ideas and help shape the future of training and workplace practices across the industry.

Run by the Construction Training Fund, the CIAC aims to host four meetings annually where members can meet to connect, share feedback, raise concerns and highlight positive experiences from across the industry.

Apprentice feedback provided via the CIAC will help ensure apprentice perspectives contribute to future conversations about training, workforce development and industry improvement.

Participation is voluntary and members are not required to attend every session. An online link will be provided for regional-based apprentices and those unable to join in-person.

Key messages

Apprentices

The CIAC gives apprentices a direct opportunity to have their voices heard on matters affecting their training and workplace experiences.

WA construction apprentices, have your say in shaping the future of your industry.

Participation is voluntary and open to all WA construction apprentices.

Apprentices can attend sessions in person or online, making it accessible regardless of location.

Members can participate as much or as little as their schedule allows, with no requirement to attend every meeting.

Your voice. Your trade. Your future.

About CTF

CTF is committed to ensuring apprentice perspectives are considered when informing future workforce, training and industry initiatives.

The CIAC reflects CTF's commitment to supporting apprentices and strengthening the long-term sustainability of Western Australia's construction workforce.

Through the CIAC, CTF aims to facilitate meaningful conversations that help shape positive outcomes for apprentices and the broader construction industry.
